

Good Music for Boomtown

Holland-Born Hans Kindler, Director, Adopts U. S.

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — "Music — good music for a boom-town" should be the title on any story today about Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Holland-born Hans Kindler adopted America. He wasn't run out of anywhere by dictators or lack of funds or conservation laws or anything. He's "American by choice," which gave him the right to be a little shocked and stunned and ashamed that the land of his adoption had a great national capital behind a symphony orchestra.

That old theatrical saying about there being three bad weeks in theater, "Easter week, Christmas week and Washington," made him blush and so when, in 1931, he was doing a concert tour in Java, Sumatra, Bali, and other South Sea islands, and was fed up with the pomp and applause of these exotic lands, he turned his back on a great concert 'cello career and came to Washington.

Called Him Crazy

Folks told him he was crazy. He was in the depths of a depression. "When does one want music if it is not when one is depressed?" answered Kindler, and he had his way. He estimated a $35,000 boxoffice take, raised $45,000 in guarantees. At the end of his first depression season he had netted nearly $100,000 and in a year when gilt-edged stocks couldn't pay half of one per cent, the National Symphony cut a sweet little melon for its backers.

I give you this background, because without it you can't understand big, blondish Hans Kindler and his "boomtown music" which is now almost as much a part of the Washington scene as the Monument.

The Washington boom didn't start with national defense. It began several years ago. Kindler saw it coming.

British railways employ 600,000 men to whom they pay out $500,000,000 annually in wages.

Defense May Upset Output

In Some Cases Objectors Can't Advertise Fact

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — There is an odd kind of censorship going on which, probably because of the flow of big news, rarely is mentioned.

Manufacturers who hold defense contracts, it seems, have to submit to the Office of Production Management, army or navy, all advertising which mentions in any way that they may not be able to deliver this or that because their national defense commitments or priorities have taken this or that off the market.

For obvious reasons, I can't name names—but this came directly from a manufacturer. About two months ago, he wanted to explain in a national advertising campaign that for a few months it might be hard to get his particular patented article but that if customers would just bear with him for a short time he would be back in the production groove.

For two months OPM and the army mulled over this ad—ordered a dozen changes until it hardly said anything—and finally agreed to okay it subject to last minute revisions. The harassed manufacturer tried to explain that national advertising campaigns were planned weeks or months in advance—that muggings had to lock their ad forms a long time ahead that national advertising to newspapers can not be sold and planned on 24-hour notice. OPM, which had the last word, was adamant.

"But I tell you it can't be handled that way," said the manufacturer. "If you won't agree to my proposition, suggest another."

What he got was a suggestion that he just drop the whole thing altogether and carry on with his usual advertising.

If you hear about a New Jersey producer jumping into one of his own acid vats, be said to me, don't be surprised.

A Reversal of Form

Ovids bring up another choice priorities yarn that is floating around the capital.

In the early days of national defense (before OPM) a big chemical company that turns out a product which is 95 to you. Today the stuff inside the bottles is what the labels say it is.

Finally, ten years ago, when you walked into a night club, somebody yelled "Hello Sucker," and he (or she) was right—because you were.

You were being played for a sap. You paid anywhere from three to five dollars cover charge just for the privilege of sitting in a chair. That didn't pay for anything you ate or drank.

Nobody yells "Hello Sucker" at you today.

But they're mighty likely to ask you along with everybody else, to join in a chorus of "God Bless America."

per cent a chemical that is important to one vital defense product sent a representative to Washington to offer to curtail the manufacture of this nationally-advertised item until it was determined how much of it would be necessary for defense.

The representative was given a run-around and sent home with the assurance that the government could do without him and his company very nicely.

That was about a year ago. Today, the same company, with a government contract and under government orders, is buying back its product from wholesalers and retailers—in many cases at a premium—and going through the expensive process of taking out of it the 6 per cent extraneous chemicals, trying to avoid a national shortage of that vital 95 per cent.

Causing the Thunder

Couple a big number of such stories with the testimony before congressional committees that some manufacturers have cost us hundreds of thousands of dollars more than original estimates—that a year ago there was a ridiculous waste an dships, even to unfriendly nations, of vital materials (steel and scrap iron) are examples—and you will see a lot of thunder is rumbling over the heads of national defense agencies today.

Something to Remember

One encouraging thing came to me the other day from one of the outstanding production chiefs of the World War. He said: "I know that you are going to find grave errors in judgment and man examples of serious waste—but if you will just go back and search out the idiocies and criminal graft and extravagances of 1917 and '18, I think you will see that we have progressed and that public demands and public scorn will drive the red tapeworms, the grafters and the fifth columnists out of the pasture in time to save the crop."

SPARTANBURG, S. C. —(P)—The man walked unassisted into General Hospital where a physician took stitches in an ugly wound—without benefit of anesthetic.

While the sewing was under way, the man went to sleep. Awakened by a nurse he refused a bed, went into an anteroom where he sat and charmed with the knife that caused the wound.

As a result of the conversation, the attacker paid the hospital bill and together they reported the "incident" to Sheriff

Miss Green Weds Texarkana Man Sunday

Miss Elizabeth Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Mullin Green of Hope, Arkansas, became the bride of John Thorpe Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Anderson Williams of Lonoke, at a beautiful wedding solemnized at 8:00 o'clock Sunday evening, June 29, at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Hope. The Reverend Harry Wintermeyer performed the ceremony. The marriage took place on the wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

The church decorations in white and green furnished the keynote of the all white wedding. Plush ferns and Southern amilax were massed above the altar on either side of which were seven branch wrought iron candleabra holding long white tapers. Flower baskets filled with Easter lilies, gladioli and delphinium, interspersed with candelabra holding cathedral tapers, were effectively arranged in the chancel. Sprays of white gladioli and fern with bows of white satin ribbon marked the pews. Preceding the ceremony James Henry Jr. lighted the tapers.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Benjamin Hyatt, organist, and Mrs. Edwin Byrd of Crossett, Arkansas, violinist. Preceding the entrance of the bridal party, Mrs. Hyatt played "Shubert's Serenade" and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" by Saint Saens. Mrs. Byrd sang "O Perfect Love" by Barnby. During the ceremony, Mrs. Hyatt played "Liebestraum" by Liszt. The bridal chorus from Wagner's "Lohengrin" was the processional and the wedding march from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" was the recessional.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her father, was lovely in a wedding gown of white net over satin, designed with tight bodice, having a sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves. The very full skirt ending in a long train was trimmed with four tiers of ruffles at the bottom. The two-tiered veil of illusion was caught with a coronet of gardenias. The bride carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis.

The bride's attendants were identical gowns of ante bellum design fastioned with white starched chiffon over taffeta. The ruffled sweetheart neckline will be at home in Texarkana.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Holman, Miss Sanchez C. McGowin, W. E. Gann, and Mrs. Flora Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Jed Morse, Mr. and Mrs. McCoey, Mrs. H. H. Smiley, Miss Mary Smiley, Mrs. Valrie Lowry, Mrs. A. H. Van Hovenberg, Mrs. M. F. Joe Vesey Circle Meets
On Monday Night

Members of the Joe Vesey circle of the Wesleyan Guild of the First Methodist church were entertained Monday night by Mrs. Roy Stephenson and Mrs. Kelley Bryant at the home of the latter. Artistic arrangements of daisies and gladioli decorated the reception rooms where the meeting was held.

Mrs. Syd McMath was in charge of the program and presented Mrs. Joe Vesey, who had the principal part.

During the social hour a delicious ice course was served.

The Misses Broach Compliment Visitors in the City

As special compliment to Mrs. McRae Andrews of McAllen, Texas and Mrs. Robert Vesey of Manila, Philippines Islands, the Misses Elsie and Kathleen Broach were hostesses at a delightful four-course dinner at the Barlow on Monday night.

Dainty porcelain figurines flanked the central arrangement of a pink crystal bowl containing pink gladioli. Attractive place cards which were red and gold replicas of the "Old family album" containing a school girl kodak picture of the guests marked covers for the following: Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Vesey, Mrs. T. S. McDavid, Mrs. C. D. Lester, Mrs. Glen Williams, Mrs. Helen McRae, Miss Mary Arnold, Miss Elsie Broach, and Miss Kathleen Broach.

After dinner the guests were invited to the home of the hostesses where an enjoyable evening was spent. "Cokes" were served.

The World's News as Told in Pictures

Now the Locust Swarm on Russia

This air view made from an RAF plane gives a dramatic picture of one of the new German techniques which is probably in use against Russia. Junkers transport planes are shown swarming like locusts over a Crete air field after most of them were crash landed. The Germans disregarded plane losses to their troops fighting on the land.

"Momma on Hail to Manage Brenda's Wedding

Germans Taken by British in Libyan Attack

German soldiers line up in North Africa waiting for trip to British prison camp. Empire forces attacking from Egypt claim to have inflicted severe losses on axis before retreating to original positions.

Kind of a Silly Place to Park a Plane

Two feet higher and this uninvited caller would have knocked Charles Seeley and family from their beds. As it was, the plane poked its front into the kitchen, injuring neither of the New Jersey pilots, but leaving quite a job for some Havelock, New Brunswick, carpenter.

Fall of the Republic in France

The famed streets of Paris know the meaning of "collaboration." Here a workman in suburban St. Denis takes down the marker "Rue de la Republique" (Street of the Republic) and prepares to replace it with the sign "Rue du Marechal Pétain" (Street of Marshal Pétain).

Street Scene in England

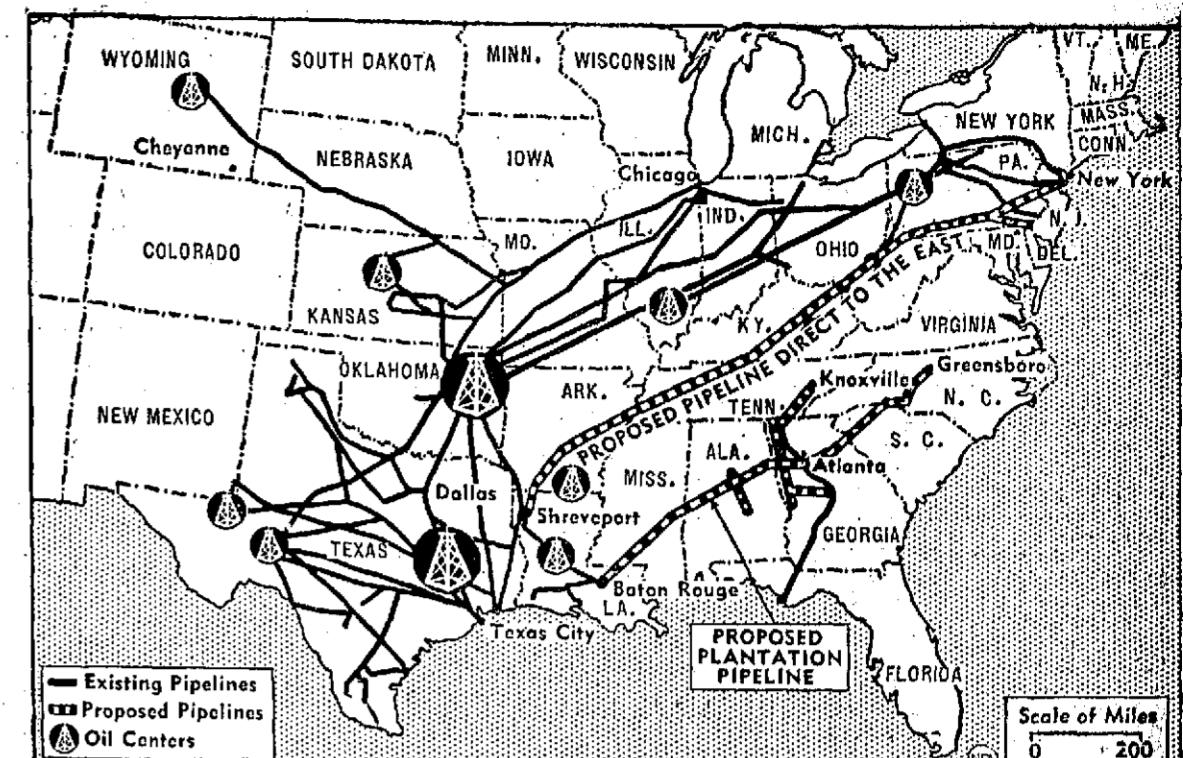

Everything's as usual on this busy corner in Richmond, England—except that every person in the picture, down to the youngest child, wears a gas mask. Tear gas was released in this rehearsal against attack by war's most feared weapon.

May Be Jumping in Syria Now

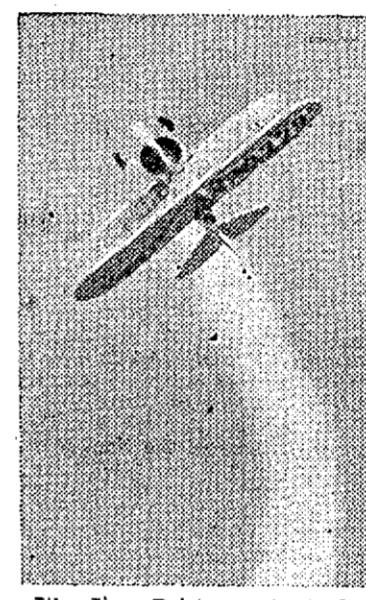

RAF flyers somewhere in Middle East nonchalantly perch on bombs for checker game while their plane is loaded, possibly for attack on Syria.

New Pipelines to Rush Oil to Worried East

Two new petroleum pipelines are being considered as a solution to the oil worries of the east, where shortage threatens because of reduced ship transportation facilities. Map shows proposed routes, one direct to New Jersey, the other across the south, and network of oil pipelines that cover middle west.

Large Crowds Attend Revival Tabernacle Meeting to Continue Balance of Week

Another large crowd filling the Hope Gospel Tabernacle auditorium to almost capacity heard the special musical program by the Sanders Brothers, evangelists for the meeting. The Edwards Family of Taft, Calif., and Mrs. J. E. Hamill, Monday night.

The revival services continue through this week, closing on Sunday night. Services are held each night, except Saturday at 8:00 o'clock.

The Wednesday night services will be a special meeting, at which time prayer will be offered for the sick. Evangelist LeRoy Sanders announced Monday.

Thursday night will be a great young people service, with the sermon directed to the youth of the city. However, all parents and elderly people are urged to attend, Pastor J. E. Hamill said.

One of the many enjoyable features in the meeting, Mr. Hamill said, was the congregational singing led by Raymond Sanders, and the special led by the Sanders Brothers. The Tabernacle pastor urged all citizens of Hope to avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing this "splendid young evangelist preach like a veteran."

Immediately upon the War Department's release of the final map, The Star's map will be republished with the new boundaries marked in white.

To Use Local Utilities

Officials of the Proving Ground are out of town for the Fourth of July holiday period and can't be reached for a statement, but it is understood in City of Hope circles that the local municipal plant will be called on to furnish both electricity and water for initial construction operations.

The Proving Ground probably will sink its own wells for water, later on, but the federal establishment will buy its electricity—either from the City of Hope or from some private power company. At least that is the understanding here.

Labor Office Jammed

People are thronging the offices of the Arkansas Employment Service, Walnut and Second streets, hoping for jobs on the Proving Ground construction work, but the office is limited to the registration of persons actually living within the five-county Hope district.

Persons living within the actual area to be condemned for the Proving Ground will have first call on available jobs, and after them the first call will be given persons living in the Hope area. That was the statement made by Senator Spencer last week.

Congress Makes Big Cash Outlay For Fiscal Year

During the day and evening alone, it passed bills calling for an outlay of more than $4,000,000,000. It was hard working session aimed at completing the money voting task before midnight brought the close of the fiscal year.

It successively sent to the White House, bills carrying:

SERIAL STORY

ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE

BY DONNA ASHWORTH

COPYRIGHT, 1941,
NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY Lita Damon and Jerry Lane are New York's favorite dance team, but marriage to Jerry has robbed success of its glamour for Lita. She is tired of being the "girlfriend" of a pretender to be his wife. Jerry is in love with Ruth Eustace. Then Lita meets Ken Richards, a southerner. Ken tells Lita he is in love, working for her all his life. "And when you find me, I'm another man's wife."

CHAPTER II

PEOPLE fluttered and buzzed in Ruth Eustace's luxurious penthouse. There was a bedlam of laughter, high-pitched voices, corks popping, ice clinking, the blare of the radio.

Lita came into the living room, looking at the people milling about. Jerry moved toward her swiftly, catching her hand in his, half dragging her out to the shadowed terrace.

"Here, darling, kiss me quick. Tell me you aren't mad at me. You know I love you so, I'm sorry I was angry."

Jerry loved her, she guessed. He was always telling her so, and now his lips burned against hers. Or was it just part of the picture, the ardent husband, always making over her? And now, as it had been so often of late, his kisses left her cold.

They were always quarreling and making up. She drew away from him. Was she quite insane? She was Jerry's wife. She loved Jerry. But she didn't really, not any more. That was dead. She just went on because she didn't know what else to do, because there were no grounds for her to get a divorce, nothing tangible, except that she was tired of everything, tired of the whole scheme of living, tired of kissing like this, and the pretense of love.

"What's the matter?" Jerry's voice was sharp and angry again, and she realized that she had drawn stiffly away from him. "Still mad, aren't you? You don't like my kisses."

"I do, Jerry, but—" She stammered for words. She didn't want him to kiss her. She didn't want anybody to, except—She caught her breath with a start—Ken Richards.

"I'm not up to it tonight, somehow. I'm tired, anyway. You don't really want to kiss me. It's just habit, to make people think that we're as madly in love as we pretend. I'm not mad, just tired." "Oh, here you are!" A voice echoed through the darkness. "You've got to dance with me, Jerry." Ruth was beside them. "You promised you'd show me that new step."

"Beginning now," Jerry turned to her quickly. "I like to dance with you, Ruth. You're one of the few who can do what I tell them to."

Ruth was crazy about Jerry. That was the reason that this arrogant, wealthy group had taken Lita and Jerry into their midst.

The reason Ruth was so nice to Lita. She wanted Jerry and Jerry wouldn't go without his wife.

Lita wondered when Jerry would realize that it was he alone Ruth wanted, and he could leave his wife behind any time and Ruth would be glad.

"Here she is, Ken. We promised we'd find her." Ruth was back at the door again. "Your Romeo is on your trail, Lita."

KEN RICHARDS was beside her. Jerry had gone with Ruth. It didn't matter. Ken stood so that she could feel his arm against hers, and her heart was pounding.

"Let's go over where we can look out," he said, as he guided her toward the balustrade where they could see the lighted city.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Asserting that the proposed Blakely Mountain dam on the Ouachita river near Hot Springs was primarily a federal flood control project, Governor Adkins said today he did not believe the state should assume the initiative to seek its completion as a power project.

"I would be mighty glad for the federal government to go ahead and build the dam either as a flood control or a combination power and flood control project," Adkins said, "but it is not the type of a project for the state to undertake at this time."

Referring to a proposal outlined in an editorial in the Hot Springs New Era, afternoon newspaper, that the state issue revenue bonds to defray the state's part of the cost of completion, Adkins said issuance of the bonds would require a vote of the people since there is a constitutional prohibition against issuance of bonds increasing state indebtedness.

"I would be reluctant to have the people vote on such a project at this time in view of recent developments," the governor said.

Adkins said that the federal government may construct plants to supply up to 200,000 kilowatts power in the South Arkansas Sour Gas fields and that this action might make a state-operated power plant unprofitable.

"I would be reluctant to have the people vote on such a project at this time in view of recent developments," the governor said.

Annually, more lumber is yielded by the Douglas fir of the Pacific coast than by any other species in America.

Jerry seemed very far away. Ken's kisses against her lips were sweet.

"You're crazy," she said. She wanted to escape, but there was no escape. Ken's arms drew her back.

Behind them there was laughter and music. Before them a million lights twinkled. Below them the city roared. But they were away from all of it, alone in the exhilarating October night, the two of them, as if for the world did not exist.

"Where do I belong?" she asked. Perhaps she would find the answer now, the answer to everything, the reason why life had become so dull, so tiresome, the reason why her dreams had seemed so far away, somehow out of reach, and she couldn't find them anymore.

"I'm mad about you." His strong arms gathered her close. "I don't want to be, but I am. You're everything I've been taught to stay away from. You're everything I'm not. But I love you. I'm going to marry you."

She listened in stunned silence. She couldn't think. This was something out of a book, something unreal. He made her dizzy and drunk with a new feeling that she had never experienced before. His compliments had been like wine; she loved hearing them. Jerry seemed very far away. Ken's kisses against her lips were sweet.

"You're crazy." She tried to struggle away, fighting against his strength. Instinctively, she knew that this ought not to be. She wanted to escape but there was no escape. His arms drew her back.

"Darling, listen, it's love. Don't you understand? We were meant for each other."

Ruth was crazy about Jerry. That was the reason that this arrogant, wealthy group had taken Lita and Jerry into their midst.

The reason Ruth was so nice to Lita. She wanted Jerry and Jerry wouldn't go without his wife.

"I'm crazy, mad, and so are you. I'm married to Jerry. I love him. He loves me. We are the ones who belong to each other. You don't mean anything. I'm not going to marry you. You're drunk and so am I. Too much champagne. I..." She laughed a little hysterically.

"I've always been able to carry mine before. But you hypnotize me. I don't know what I'm doing. I can't seem to
